Dear Dr. HENNEY:

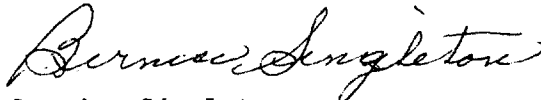

Sometime ago I contacted the Center for Science Interest (CSPI) regarding our ghastly experience after consuming Frito-Lay chips using OLESTRA. Believe me, it was very unpleasant.

Now I understand Proctor & Gamble and Frito-Lay are pressuring the FDA to eliminate the "little" label on the package stating OLESTRA may cause abdominal cramping and Loose stools.

I beg you, do NOT remove the WARNING label, if anything, make the warning label LARGER on the packages. OLESTRA could be deadly to small children as well as older folks. We have enough POISONS in our foods already without adding a new poison OLESTRA.

PLEASE use more warning labels on all packaging.

Sincerely,

Bernice Singleton
